The future of art in an age of crisis

David Walsh, WSWS arts editor, to speak in Virginia

1 April 2009

The present economic crisis, the most devastating since the Great Depression, finds all social layers in America unprepared, including artists and intellectuals.

Is it possible to point to a single film, play or novel that provided a forewarning of what was to come, even a serious premonition? How can the current artistic and cultural malaise be overcome?

The historical and social roots of the problem have to be examined. What part did the anti-communist purges of the 1940s and 1950s play? What is the role of socalled Critical Theory, Postmodernism and other trends?

David Walsh, arts editor of the World Socialist Web Site, will address these issues. A question and answer period will follow his talk.

Richmond, Virginia Monday, April 13, 6pm VCU Student Commons Richmond Salon 1 Virginia Commonwealth Ann Arbor, Michigan Thursday, April 9, 7 pm University of Michigan Michigan League Michigan Room
