

Video: Detroit creative art students denounce DIA selloff plans

27 September 2013

The World Socialist Web Site visited the College for Creative Studies to speak to students about the proposed selloff of artwork from the Detroit Institute of Arts. An art-centric college, CCS attracts talented students from around the region. The campus is located just across the street from the world-class museum.

The sentiment on the campus is overwhelmingly opposed to the plans of Detroit's emergency manager to put the assets of the DIA "on the table" for possible sale to pay off the city's creditors.
